Rich Erwin is one of the farmers who would like to see a little rain—but not because of crops, or anything of that sort. Rich has an auto and he likes to use it, but he finds the dust so thick that bad holes in the road are covered, with the result that some severe jolts are given the autoist. Mr. Erwin does not mind hitting the chuck-holes when he can see them but to bump into them unknowingly is something like taking one step too many at the head of the stairs.

Owing to improvements which are now being made at the Palace theater, that house will be closed for the remainder of this week and the motion pictures will be shown at the Star theater, instead, an entirely new program of films having been arranged for tonight.

The opening picture is called "The Leopard Queen" and portrays the taming of a family of leopards by a young girl, who had been cast away on the coast of Zanzibar and for years had lived along in the jungle with these savage animals as her only companions.

Another high art Vitagraph film is entitled "The Sword and the King" and is crowded with thrilling scenes of stirring events in the history of a small kingdom where the people rebel against the oppressions of their tyrant ruler and crown a young shepherd as their king.
